Wins Watch

Gene Doss, Appomattox, became the proud winner of a wrist watch in West End Market's contest to guess the pounds of meat in a display. His guess came closest to the number, 2787. Mr. and Mrs. Doss have two children, Bobby, 5, and Burrus Lumber Co., Lynchburg. Mrs. Doss had to use her own until this lucky guess put a pretty new one on her wrist. Manager Ralph King, left, presents the watch to Doss.

The moral of this, if any, is two-fold. Parents whose children are young should not neglect the training of their boys and girls. It is a task which cannot be delegated to others entirely. And, children, as they enter into life on their own responsibilities, should not overlook their power to wreck and make miserable the closing years of their parents lives.

Fifth Column

We also have spies in Russia and in the satellite nations. It is a relatively new game for America. Until World War II, our intelligence or secret service organization was quite limited. The British, German, Russian and Hungarian espionage systems, among others, were widely admired as being thorough and efficient.

In this field we have partly failed, for Americans have turned over secrets ranging from atomic bomb information on down, to our enemies, the Communists, ever since World War II. Unless we do better in this field we could lose our freedom through treachery and traitors, acting as the enemy's "fifth" column.

When you give your own note, you can get out of it by paying same. If you have bought something which you know is a losing proposition, you can sell it and take your loss with Uncle Sam. But when you endorse a note, the note goes to a bank or to some third party and passes entirely out of your control. The endorsement may hang over you for years. Endorsements have no time limit! Beware of them!

Buy A Little Stock

If the stock of the corporation for which you are going to work is listed on the New York or the American Stock Exchange buy one share of it each month and have it registered in your name — not in your wife's name. If the stock is selling for more than you can afford to pay each month, buy a share once every other month; but buy it regularly and systematically.

If the stock is not listed, buy a share of the stock of one of your local banks each month. You can tell the treasurer or some other officer of the bank that I have advised you to do this; he will get the stock for you. Have this stock issued in your name so you will get the dividends. This system will make you a profit; but, more important, it will give you a good reputation as a substantial citizen. Be well thought of now and it will give you credit later if you want to start a business of your own.

Be Careful When You Write

It is a good rule to be careful always about what you put into writing. In fact, it often helps to have someone else's opinion on your material. Although I have been writing this column once a week for many years it is always checked very carefully by a most able employee of mine. So let me suggest that, even when you are taking on a new job, you should not be ashamed or embarrassed to ask someone in your office to look at work you are doing and advise you.

Use the telephone whenever possible. Never criticize anyone in a letter unless you carry liability insurance! Even when thanking or congratulating people, I often "say it with flowers". Sometimes you hate to refuse a request; but you can often save both money and a friend by going to a nearby florist and sending some flowers. Greeting cards are also wonderful investments to use freely — for birthdays, Christmas New Year's and for "sympathy" messages. Be careful about congratulating friends and relatives when a new baby comes into a family or it may be named for you!

God Within

Lesson for October 28, 1962

Sometimes it looks as if the Church made it harder instead of easier to believe in God. The Church talks about the Trinity, but we don't understand that.

It talks about the Holy Spirit, but that seems very hard to understand. On the contrary, the Church's teaching about the Holy Spirit (all the good of which we owe to the Bible in the first place) makes God much nearer than we would otherwise dare to think about Him. In fact a definition of the Holy Spirit which many Christian teachers have expressed is just this: The Holy Spirit is God at work in the hearts of men. The Holy Spirit is God within.

You will never be any closer to God nor He to you, than you are to the Holy Spirit.

He Will Send. . . I Will Send. . .

Of course no reader will suppose that he can find out all there is to know about God, in one single column in a newspaper. All we can do is to point out three truths, all of them from the teaching of Jesus. First of all is that apparent contradiction: Jesus tells His disciples first that the Father will send them the Holy Spirit, and then that He (Christ) will do so. We are intended to put these two truths together. The Holy Spirit comes from the Father and comes from the Son of God, from Jesus Christ. Now if you insist on puzzles, there are puzzles in that simple statement. But let's by-pass the puzzles and look at what is plain. The least this can mean is that the Holy Spirit is like the Father and like the Son, — we might (using human terms of course) say that the Holy Spirit is in harmony with, and represents, both the Father and the Son, both the high God and our Lord Jesus. (One is no more and no less God than the other is.) Well, what is this? Another puzzle? No; this truth gives us a way to distinguish between alleged Spirits of God and the true Spirit. If the "Spirit" leads a man to do what is not Christ-like, then we may be sure that whatever he has in his heart, it is not the Spirit whom Christ has sent.

Truth and Conscience

Jesus furthermore calls the Holy Spirit the "Spirit of Truth." Some Christians understand this to mean that wherever men are moving in the direction of truth — any truth, scientific, economic, intellectual, religious — there the Holy Spirit is at work. Now of course, if God is a god of truth, His Spirit will never support a lie. And we may well believe that God is concerned with truth of every kind and in every aspect of life. But it is also true that the Holy Spirit is most especially concerned with truth about God and about his relation to the world and particularly to man. It is quite possible, it happens every day, that men who have no religion and do not believe in God at all, make scientific explorations and discoveries that are true and even valuable. But no one is likely to learn much about God who does not seek the help of the Holy Spirit. To put this another way only God can introduce us to God.

What a normal human being wants, however, is not mere bare truth, he wants not only to know, he wants to do. This is particularly true in the Christian religion. Like its mother-religion of Judaism, Christianity has always been interested in action. Right living is quite as important as right thinking, the two cannot be separated. So the Holy Spirit is called the "Counselor." This is a better translation than "Comforter" or "Advocate" though it may include those other meanings. The word suggests that God-within is not a presence only, but a guiding presence. Put into simple language, this means that the more Godlike, the more Christlike, a person is, the more he will do what is right in the sight of God. We can't live with people without learning their ways; and we cannot live with God without learning — humbly but truly — more and more of His will.

In God We Trust

The Treasury Department is obviously undisturbed by the Supreme Court's frown over government-sponsored prayer — for it is proceeding with its plans to stamp "In God We Trust" on all paper currency.

Today, the motto appears on millions of dollar bills, and is being imprinted on all new $1 silver certificates.

But, since a lot of currency without the motto still is in circulation, the public has raised a question — Does the Supreme Court ban on a New York school prayer carry over to the use of the religious motto on U. S. currency?

The answer is a flat "no." The Bureau of Engraving and Printing reports that "ultimately, all United States paper currency as well as Federal Reserve Notes will bear the motto 'In God We Trust.'"

The first recorded suggestion that the Deity be recognized on American coins came from a Pennsylvania preacher 101 years ago. In November of 1861, the Rev. N. R. Watkinson proposed to Treasury Secretary Salmon P. Chase that our nation accord "recognition of the Almighty God in some form in our coins."

Watkinson feared that future historians might think the United States had been a heathen nation, if they judged by coin relics. Accordingly he proposed a design which would feature the words "God, liberty law."

"From my heart," wrote Watkinson, "I have felt our national shame in disowning God as not the least of our present national disasters."

Spurred by the minister's letter, Secretary Chase wrote to the Director of the Mint that same month, saying:

"No nation can be strong except in the strength of God, or safe except in His defense. The trust of our people in God should be declared on our national coins.

"You will cause a device to be prepared without unnecessary delay with a motto expressing in the fewest and terest words possible this national recognition."

The first coin bearing the motto, "In God We Trust," was a two-cent bronze piece authorized in 1864.

From then until the present, the motto has appeared on more and more coins. An Act of May 1908 required the continuation of the motto on all coins which had carried it up to that time. In 1955, another congressional act required that all coins of the United States carry the words, "In God We Trust."

Dollar bills have been carrying the motto (on paper money) for many, many years, and indications are that other denominations of currency will follow suit in the future.

All this recognition of our independence upon a Supreme Being is a part of the American tradition.

But such recognition seems to run counter to the thinking of the Supreme Court on the New York prayer case.

In banning a 22-word nonsectarian prayer devised by the New York Board of Regents, the Supreme Court said:

"When the power prestige and financial support of government is placed behind a particular religious belief, the indirect coercive pressure upon religious minorities to conform to the prevailing officially approved religion is plain."

What would the Court say now if an agnostic, or an atheist, or someone else who happens not to believe in God challenged the legality of placing "In God We Trust" on our coins?

Would Justice Hugo Black be forced to say again, as he said in the New York prayer case, that "a union of government

Pipeline Price Is Too Low

Mr. W. Lloyd Vaughan
Editor & Publisher
TIMES -VIRGINIAN
Appomattox, Va.
Dear Mr. Vaughan:

I read your October 11th news feature of the new pipe line coming through the county and the comments by property owners who would be affected.

I'm not a property owner of Appomattox County but have two tracts of land just across the county line in Charlotte. The Pipe Line Company has made a survey to come through the farm that has been entirely reserved for timber growing. I can see that our nation accord ver thought $1.00 per rod for a seventy-five foot right of way was a fair price, since the land could still be used. This is not true of timber growing. Its future use will be lost

I was insulted by the small price the Pipeline Company made me for a right-of-way and turned it down. With the rising land values I think we must look to the future and demand a fair price, and not accept prices they are now offering.

Yours truly,
Robert A. Hunter

Birthday Story Stirs Memory

Mr. Ernest F. Smith
Spout Spring, Va.
Dear Mr. Smith:

I receive the Times - Virginian and in its last weeks issue I read with much interest the account of your 80th birthday along with the very complimentary account of your several hobbies.

First let me congratulate you upon reaching your 80th mile stone, and truly I hope you may enjoy many - many more such enjoyable occasions.

Since Early American history and genealogy is a hobby with me, I was pleased that you made mention of "Hunter's Tavern. Jon Hunter 11, its owner, was anny Great Great Grandfather. His father, John Hunter 1, of Scotland married Henrietta Davidson and they came to America and settled in the eastern part of the Virginia Colony about the year 1730.

In 1758 their first son, John Hinter 11 who had married Rachel McFarland, moved westward and settled on the site where you live. He acquired a large acreage in that section and of the schools in which the prayers were said. What would be say if the money itself were challenged?

If the Supreme Court has undertaken to rule upon the propriety of prayer in the several states, what will it do when asked to rupe upon the legality of the United States' recognizing God?

Sincerely,
E. H. Howerton

"Times Virginian" made such a nice report of your activities that you might want to give them a copy of the above information.

With every good wish for you and Mrs. Schindler.

Sincerely,
E. H. Howerton
